

Par and Score by Hole

The golf round report shows the par required to be a good golfer for an 18 round game at Potsdam Country Club. This also shows the actual number of strokes require to complete each hold by an individual golfer.

Key Takeaways:

- Each hole has a different difficulty and it is shown by how the actual score reflects on the required par.
- The difference in score ranges from -1 to +3

Limitations/Questions:

- The sample size is only 1 golfer and only compares the required par to one scorecard
- Every player has a different skill level and could skew data.
- What is the actual difficulty of the 18 rounds at Potsdam Country Club?
- As with all outdoors sports, will inclement weather significantly affect the score?
